Knapp has had a productive season to this point with Kzoo. Knapp's pitch selection has been rather inconsistent. In his most recent outing on Synergy (above) vs Green Bay, he ran the fastball in to right handers all game, pairing it with a glove-side slider. Despite only using these two pitches he finished with 12K and 0BB. In other outings, his fastball was all over the zone and he threw more changeups to lefties. We have seen Knapp twice this season, most recently we notched 4 R on 3H 3BB on Jun 18. Knapp doesn't overpower hitters, and his success depends on how well he can locate his fastball. He has been favoring the slider very heavily over other offspeed as of late, nearly eliminating the curveball from his repertoire. Look for him to work to continue his recent success with a heavy dose of arm-side fastballs, sliders and an occasional changeup.
